SEEING THE COAST

H. E. HALL DESCRIBES INTERESTING AUTO TRIP TO PORTLAND, OREGON

H. E. Hall of the Oakland garage, Fifth and Brand Boulevard, returned this week from a ten weeks' trip through California to Portland, Ore., by auto. "Every mile of the way was enjoyable," said Mr. Hall. "We went by the Valley road to Berkeley. The road is so well known that I need say nothing about it except to state that the vineyards and ranches looked in excellent shape. From Berkeley we motored to Calistoga and the Petrified Forest. There we looked with amazement on the mighty redwoods that have been converted into stone by the action of water. One of these was twelve feet in diameter.

"Thence we proceeded to Eureka, the old lumber port which has taken on new life since the railroad was built into it two years ago. There was a busy atmosphere about Eureka and I was told that business is daily increasing. Humboldt bay seemed active and there was a creditable amount of shipping in the harbor.

"Thence we motored to Crescent City where I was afterward told there were quite a few former Glendale residents. Then we entered Oregon through Grants Pass and thence to Portland a distance of 299 miles from the Pass. Going up through the Willamette Valley I noticed that the crops were in excellent shape and that such towns as Roseland, Eugene and Salem were busy. Portland was at its best and seemed to be flourishing. The river front was as active as ever.

"After a stay in Portland we returned by way of Salem, Corvallis and Grant's Pass, taking in Crater lake by the way. We camped by the lake and were compelled to melt snow for water as no rivers run into the lake and its waters are 1000 feet below where we were camping on its rim, the rim of the old crater of the volcano whence it gets its name. It took eighteen minutes to descend to the level of the lake and forty minutes to get up again. We caught a number of fine rainbow trout there and found a number of people fishing and camping. Crater lake is now a government park.

"Thence we went to Klamath Falls and to Klamath and thence to Yreka and Port Jones. It was apparent to us that the war in England has sent the people of the United States into their own forests and mountains and beside their own lakes. There were visitors and sightseers everywhere and the liberality and enlightened policy of the United States government in providing conveniences for the public—camping grounds, parking for autos, and other adjuncts of camp life has multiplied the number of visitors to the great scenic grounds of California and other western states. The new roads have opened up places hitherto inaccessible and altogether have made it possible to see America with a maximum of pleasure and a minimum of trouble.

We came round by Redding, Red Bluff, Oroville and Marysville and saw with interest the dredging grounds whence so many millions of placer gold have been and still are being taken. Thence to Sacramento, from which point the way back to Glendale is well known. Looking at Glendale with unbiased eyes on my return I noticed that it had an air of turn I noticed that it had an air of growth and prosperity that were unmistakable."

DEATH OF REV. A. B. MORRISON

The Rev. A. B. Morrison, D. D., 1327 Colorado Boulevard, died at his home Friday morning at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. Morrison was eighty-six years of age. Up to about ten weeks ago he was in fairly good health and able to go out into his garden. From that time, however, he began to fail. He was born and educated in Ohio. For twenty-eight years he had been a member of the Southern California Methodist Episcopal conference and had been a Methodist clergyman for fifty-one years. Dr. Morrison served in the civil war and attained the grade of colonel. He was a prominent member of the G. A. R. He leaves a wife and one daughter. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon from the West Glendale Methodist Episcopal church, corner Fifth and Pacific.

The black coal smoke was rolling out of the large chimney at the high school building this forenoon, which indicated that the rooms in the buildings were being properly heated. Why not devise some means of utilizing the great volume of smoke that spreads over the buildings and grounds?

FATAL ACCIDENT

WELL KNOWN YOUNG MAN IS DEAD AS RESULT OF AN ACCIDENT

Many people in Glendale who were acquainted with George R. Martin and were accustomed to seeing him on the streets daily, driving his express wagon, were shocked this morning to hear of his death which occurred as the result of an accident last night. Just how the accident occurred is not known as there were no witnesses. Martin was riding on his motorcycle and when in the vicinity of Central avenue and Myrtle street he ran into a wagon, supposedly one belonging to the Sam Woo laundry. He was thrown from his wheel and sustained a basal fracture of the skull. The Scovern-Letton-Frey ambulance was called and the suffering young man was conveyed to Thornycroft hospital where an attempt was made to save his life but he passed away at 5 minutes after 8 o'clock this morning.

The deceased had been engaged in the transfer business in Glendale for some months and was very favorably known here. He was 22 years of age and a native of the state of Washington. The only relative in this locality is I. T. Aney of 206 South Louise street who is a step brother of the deceased.

An inquest will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the Scovern-Letton-Frey parlors. The remains will be shipped to Kelso, Wash., where relatives of the young man reside.

MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

As the result of a motorcycle and wagon collision Sam Merriken of South Central avenue, is lying in a very serious condition in the Mission hospital of Tropico and Francis Hoopes of 1664 Colorado boulevard, is also badly cut up, and in the same hospital. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock this morning, Francis Hoopes was driving the motorcycle and Sam Merriken was seated behind. They were coming east on Colorado, between San Fernando and Central. The auto wagon of the Tropico Transfer company, which was taking a load of meat for distribution along toward San Fernando road was on the right side of the road.

The driver, Fred Biddle, was accompanied by the proprietor of the Transfer company, Mr. Wibelitz. It is stated by Mr. Wibelitz that Hoopes had his head turned around toward the rear seat of the motorcycle talking to Sam Merriken, when he noticed the auto wagon. At that time the motorcycle was in the center of the road. Hoopes swerved the motorcycle to the left instead of to the right and smashed into the wagon, which Biddle had turned off the road and ran upon the curb in an endeavor to avoid the collision.

The impact of the collision was so great that Hoopes and Merriken were thrown six feet away from their motorcycle which was badly smashed. The two boys were conveyed to the Tropico Mission hospital, where Merriken was found to be suffering from two broken ribs and from dangerous internal injuries. Hoopes, though badly cut and bruised is in no danger.

BRITISH TROOPS MAKE SECURE THEIR POSITION ON THE EAST OF THE STRUMA RIVER

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

SALONIKI, Oct. 6.—The Bulgarian troops are in full retreat before the British in the Struma valley. The British are striving to take Seres and it looks as though they would now accomplish that object. They are now past Kenekevi and are driving along the Seres road. The Servians are within eight miles of Monastir. They are in country that is well known to them. The Allies are thus advancing rapidly on both flanks of Monastir and are struggling desperately to get into the easier country ahead.

The statement says that most of them were killed or captured and that only a few escaped over the river. Mackensen is likely to have a hard time avoiding being caught between the Russians and the troops under Sarrail advancing through Macedonia.

SUPPORTERS OF ADMIRAL VON TIRPITZ DEMAND UNDERSEA ASSAULT ON BRITISH PORTS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Supporters of the policy of Admiral Von Tirpitz, who advocate a relentless submarine warfare against Great Britain, this morning strenuously demanded that Germany wage a relentless warfare against the British ports. They argued that this would produce such a reign of terror as would speedily amount to an effective blockade of the English harbors.

HOLLAND WARNED AGAINST PEACE MOVES

ALLIES TELL DUTCH GOVERNMENT ANY PLAN TO END WAR AT THIS JUNCTURE IS USELESS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ROME, Oct. 6.—The Allied leaders today informed the Dutch government that any move at this juncture to inaugurate peace plans would be distasteful to the Allied nations and that the nation making them would find that its move would be construed as pro-German. It is believed that Germany sought to try out the mood of the Allies through Holland.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6.—Russia is negotiating with several South American governments with a view to sending out to them as emigrants one million Russian Poles. It is believed that their settlement in Brazil, Peru or some other suitable country would vastly relieve some of the congestion in Russian centers and at the same time help to develop South America.

RELIEF IS IN SIGHT

SOLUTION IS PARTY WITH NATIONAL SPIRIT AND ABLE CANDIDATE

To the Editor of The News: In addition to the perfectly obvious proposition that the country would have great difficulty in surviving two consecutive terms of Democratic administration, and in the past has never been rashly brave enough to take a chance along that line, there is, among the many indications of the election of Mr. Hughes, the very important fact that the people are showing a strong desire to revive our national spirit.

It will be remembered that the Republican party, in principle, has always been a national party—it was formed for the purpose of preserving the Union. The Democratic party has always been a "states' rights" party, emphasizing the importance of the sovereignty of the separate states, and letting the sovereignty of the nation take care of itself. Possibly, this largely accounts for the present low standing of the United States among the nations of the earth, but to my mind there is a more controlling element than this, to-wit: The present ineffective conduct of the executive and legislative branches of the federal government by the controlling incumbents.

I claim that the policy pursued by the present administration in dealing with foreign nations has not only lost us the respect of the outside world but has actually brought us the contempt of the most insignificant nations. I contend that the recent action of the administration in abjectly submitting to the demands of one faction of our people at the expense of the balance of us, has lost for the national government the respect of the people.

How can any respect be commanded by a nation that always follows the easiest way?

How can you expect a strong patriotic regard for a nation that can be counted on always to follow the line of least resistance?

Let a nation lose the respect of other nations and the respect of its own people as well, and you will find it also has lost its self respect— its national spirit is gone. Isn't that our present situation? We can't afford that. The vaccillations of the president have already become proverbial at home and abroad. We have a right to expect extraordinary strength and ability from the holder of the position of president of the United States—it is the greatest competitive job on earth. We are entitled to a man who can "think three moves ahead." Our failure to have such a man in that position has made us, diplomatically, the laughing stock of the world. Ask Mexico.

The country feels that it is time to resort to a genuine national party, and a strong executive, for relief, and there can be no doubt of Mr. Hughes' election by the votes of thinking people. They remember he is a strong and independent executive, who not only went to the root of things in his fight against lawless in New York in connection with the gigantic insurance corporations, the public service corporations, the politicians and the gamblers, but also that he drafted and passed preventive measures that have been used as models by the other states of the Union. He may have a judicial temperament, but he didn't acquire a national reputation by means of it. Single handed, he became known as the pioneer in effective corporation control. The public never knew whether he had judicial ability or not, until long after he had made a striking and sustained demonstration of tremendous executive ability.

There we have the combination—a national party with national spirit, and a candidate of proven executive and judicial ability.

Relief is in sight!

LIBRARY BOARD

The library board met in the Glendale Public Library Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Dr. Bryant, chairman of the board presided. There were present also the following members: Mrs. Freeman Kelley, Mr. McElroy and J. E. Henderson. The session of the board was chiefly occupied with routine business. Mrs. Danford made her report showing that the library is being taken advantage of by all classes and is proving specially useful to school children, students of the High school, and members of the various clubs and societies of the city.

BIRDS OF MY GARDEN

GLENDALE GARDEN SOCIETY HEARS INTERESTING STEREOPTICON TALK

The opening meeting for the season of the Glendale Garden society was held Thursday night at the High school auditorium, when an audience of 150 listened with absorbed interest to the lecture on "Birds of My Garden." Mrs. Harriet William Myers, secretary of the California Audubon society, showed a great number of beautiful stereopticon slides of birds, and chatted about the habits of our feathered friends in a very charming and natural manner. Especially interesting were the photographs taken by herself of birds in her own garden. This lecture proved to be one of the most delightful talks ever given in Glendale; and a debt of gratitude is owed Mrs. Myers for her graciousness in affording the Glendale public such a treat.

Norton Wells, vice president, announced the policy of silver cups to be presented by the Garden society in a series of floral contests to be held during 1917. In March cups will be presented for the best daffodils (Narcissi), the best Iris and the most artistic arrangement of any flowers in a vase, to be judged by an artist. In April four cups will be awarded for the best roses, also a cup for the most artistic arrangement of any flowers in a vase, to be judged by an artist.

In May cups will be awarded for sweet pea, also a cup for the most artistic arrangement of flowers in a vase. Later in the season other contests will be planned—probably for asters, dahlias and chrysanthemums. Full details of these floral contests, rules and regulations, lists of cups and donors, cultural notes by experts, advising the right planting and care at the right time of these specialized flowers, together with the program of the Garden society's meetings for the year 1916-17, will be issued shortly in the form of a bulletin; copies of which can be secured from Headquarters, 1111 Broadway or from officers of the society, while they last for the nominal price of 5 cents each.

Another interesting feature of the evening was the presentation of prizes to members of the Bird and Flower club. These prizes were given by the leader of the club and did not come out of the finances of the Garden society. The following children received awards:

Attendance: Robert Tower, Grace Tower, Dorothy Mead, Ruth Head, Dorothy Woods, Kathleen Woods, Eugene Kille.

Honor Buttons: Grace Tower, Robert Tower, Dorothy Woods, Kathleen Woods, Dorothy Sherman, Dorothy Head.

Special prizes for essays: Eugene Kille, Agnes Thaxter, Dorothy Sherman, Wilfred White.

Special prizes for general work: Joy Willisford, Lucile Nelson, Edmund Parker, Catherine Parker, Elma Eckman, Clarence White, Doris Packer, Gladys Jones, Lilian Mason, Wilma Kulp, Frances Kulp, Walther Puffer, Norman Begg.

INTERMEDIATE P. T. A.

The ladies of the Intermediate Parent-Teacher association gave a reception and entertainment to the teachers of that school Thursday night. There was a large attendance although the rain kept many back. Mrs. R. W. Meeker, president of the association presided. She was assisted by Mrs. E. D. Yard, first vice president; Mrs. Murman, second vice president; Mrs. John R. White and Mrs. S. C. Packer. Professor Lowinsky the well known violinist played several pieces with wonderful technique. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lowinsky. Mrs. Shadrack played several piano pieces. Miss White of the High school gave some clever readings, with accompaniment by Mrs. Murman. The next meeting will be held Monday, at 3 p. m., in the Intermediate school. This will be the first regular meeting this year. Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president of the Parent-Teacher Federation will address the meeting.

HONOR BRIDES-ELECT

The Misses Mabeth Pigg and Mary Jane Evans were the honored guests at a beautifully appointed luncheon given by Mrs. George Robinson at her pretty home on Jackson street, Thursday afternoon. Other guests were the Misses Lola East and Dorothy Hobbs. The afternoon was spent in sewing on pretty things for the homes of the two young brides-to-be.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1916.

SEEING AMERICA—THE LAKE OF MYSTERY

One is reminded by the interesting story told by H. E. Hall of the Oakland garage, in the news columns of The Glendale News of his trip to Portland and of his visit to Crater lake, that that body of water is one of the most wonderful lakes in the world. It is the deepest and the bluest lake to be found anywhere. Not even the wonderful lakes of Switzerland equal its sapphire hues. It measures two thousand feet of solid water and the intensity of its color is unbelievable even while you look at it. Its cliffs from skyline to surface are a thousand feet high. It has no inlet and no visible outlet, for it occupies the hole left when, in the dim ages before man, a volcano collapsed and disappeared within itself.

Crater lake is one of the wonder spots of America that all Californians should see and that all Americans should visit. It is a gem of purest ray serene. Nothing like its marvelous coloring can be found in all the United States or in the world. One thousand feet down from the rim of the old volcano its fairy waters gleam and glisten and glow. The pearly lavas that clothe its sides are here and there relieved by patches of green as green as the pines of the California forests and spots of white as white as the snows that clothe its sides in winter. This wonderful jewel set in the bosom of the ancient crater changes its hues with each change of the atmosphere, with the shifting clouds and the varying light.

Wonderful in winter when the whole bowl of the crater is sparkling and scintillating with a million gems under the rays of the sun; tender and mysterious when the springtime lights and shades ripple across its bosom; resplendent in summer when the full blaze of the sun seems to pierce far down into its translucent depths; weird and strange in autumn when the fall of the year throws a mournful and somewhat intangible mystery over its loneliness, Crater lake is always attractive, always different and yet the same with the sameness of the centuries that have passed.

There are other craters throughout the world. Italy has some wonderful old volcanic basins; Germany can boast of them; Hawaii has several; but Crater lake in southern Oregon is unique, the finest of its kind in the world.

At one time the ancient burning mountain was one of a chain of those fiery sentinels—a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night—which stood all along the Pacific coast just as a similar chain stands along the Alaskan coast. The Pacific mountains are dead but the Alaskan mountains are active. Each coast has a beauty of its own. On account of the unique beauty of Crater lake it and its surroundings were made a national park in 1902.

Crater lake has a most remarkable color scheme. Grays, silvers and pearls soften before the eye in the niches and crannies, the fretted sides of the lava walls that surround the amethystine waters of the lake itself with a towering defense of one thousand feet. The perishable mosses and herbage that clothe its sides lend additional touches of color. The lake itself like a mirror reflects back every passing cloud with its characteristic hue. Blue varying from the palest to the deepest, the brilliant turquoise to the deepest indigo are to be seen all in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. Over all and above all broods Silence. It has been well named "The Sea of Silence." Such is Crater lake, the beauty of inland seas the paragon of the American waters.

INDIAN STUDENTS IN BRITAIN

There is not a university in England, Scotland or Ireland that has not at one time or another colored students from the numerous colonies of the British overseas lands. These students come from Cape Coast in Africa. They are visitors from South Africa and Egypt and the islands of the sea. You will find them of all shades and hues, but whatsoever they are or whencesoever they come they are made heartily welcome in the republics of letters in the kingdom.

There is no color question in Britain. When Lord Mansfield, the great jurist, declared that the moment a slave, no matter whence he might come, arrived and stood on British soil the chains fell from his arms he put aside once and forever the color line and the color question. That of course is a very different thing from the question in the United States where the American people have a very difficult problem to solve and are solving it in their own way.

However, the interesting fact remains that in the British universities a colored man may sit side by side with a peer of the realm or future jurist or a budding archbishop of Canterbury or York. Just at present there is an influx of Indian students in the British islands. India is awakened and is thinking differently from its former thought. There is a stir of new life in the ancient land of Hind. A desire for knowledge of what is thought and said and done in the great British empire of which India is at present a part has sprung up in the hearts of the Hindoos of all classes. Those who are able go to England to get an education. You will find them at St. Andrews, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen universities in Scotland; at Oxford, Cambridge and Durham in England. They go up to the difficult postgraduate examinations of London university and frequently come out with the highest honors.

All this is having an effect on India and Hindoo and Mohammedan thought. One of the first of its effects has been to make Hindoo modern poetry blossom as out of a dry ground. Where all had been dead for centuries, the fruit and flower of a poesy are to be seen—a poesy that expresses the thought of a vast people and their longings for liberty and truth.

As long as the number of students of any one nationality is not too large the British think much good is accomplished by the admision of the students; but the moment they come in crowds the good is lost. It is the nature of the big crowd to get together and to perpetuate the very habits and customs and to use the language which they would fain forget for a time.

Thus it is that the universities are studying this phase of the question and encouraging the people of Britain to receive and welcome these remote members of the great empire into their homes and to encourage them to learn and to come to understand the inner life of the British and their inner thought.

These conditions are likely to develop still more after the war, The war was one originally conceived by some of the nations as likely to break up the British empire; instead of that it is welding it into a whole that is remarkable for its homogeneity and for its better understanding of its different component parts. There can be no likelihood that this understanding which is being created by the bringing of the Hindoo troops to Europe will die out. It is rather likely to strengthen every day, and the universities will help it to become an abiding understanding. Thus are the purposes of the Almighty fulfilled in many ways.

AT GLENDALE HIGH

Proving the value of science in the kitchen, the advanced classes in cooking have just finished their fruit and vegetable canning. The samples of the work, which are on display in the exhibition cases, would bring delight to the most critical. Perfection appears to have been attained by these girls under the direction of Miss Hanson, head of the department. The pears, peaches, quince chips, pickled pears and the quince jell make the observer sincerely regret that they are behind glass.

The advanced students are taught the steaming process. By this process vegetables as well as fruits may be put up to keep indefinitely. String beans are on exhibit which have been in the jar for several years. It is impossible to estimate the value of the training received in this department, which is always open to inspection.

Carleton West and William Balthis defeated Lehman Crandall and Howard McGillis Thursday for the first position in the school tennis team by a score of 8-6, 11-9. The match was featured by the brilliant playing of West.

Senior-Freshman tennis proved a one-sided affair. Most of the matches have been played off, and without a single victory for the Scrubs who, notwithstanding, have fought every game to the finish. The tame matches are predicted to be over now, with the Sophomores and Juniors fighting it out today.

While operating a sewing machine in the domestic arts building Thursday, Eltha Harding ran a needle into her finger. The victim was taken to the office of Dr. Teel, where the steel was removed. She was then taken home.

CHANCE FOR A HOME

California is almost synonymous with the word "home." This is a land of homes. There are no more beautiful homes anywhere in the United States or in California than those in the vicinity of Glendale. Among the foothills and along the valley where lie La Canada, La Crescenta, Little Lands and other well-known home sections of this country are many beautiful homes. None of these is more beautiful than one described in The Glendale News ad, in Thursday's issue.

What Dr. W. R. Harmon, R. F. D. 13, Box 50, Los Angeles, says of this beautiful suburban home is literally true. It is within fifteen minutes' ride of Glendale by auto; 15 minutes to Pasadena, 30 minutes to Los Angeles and a brief walk brings one to the street car. Nothing could exceed the picturesque loveliness of the situation where this desirable residence is situated. The advantages of a beautiful home in the country amid scenes of wonderful beauty, close to the Sierras and close to the city; with sufficient elevation to lift its residents above the fogs of the coast and with an atmosphere exhilarating and lifegiving, are manifest.

This lovely home which stands in grounds of one and a half acres was occupied two years by a young couple. As they have gone to Los Angeles, where the husband is entering business, the house is to be sold at a price which is one-third less than it would cost to build it now. This is truly a most desirable residence, with every modern convenience, spacious and commodious. It stands in the midst of a desirable community, with school, church and social oportunities. To anyone wanting a home of this sort, here is an unrivaled opportunity.

It has been reported that Paul Hodge met with a painful accident at Cypress and Central avenue this morning while riding a motorcycle. He collided with an auto truck.

WE LIVE IN DEEDS

We live in deeds, not in years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs.
He most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best
And he whose heart beats quickest lives longest,
Lives in one hour more than in years do some
Whose fat blood sleeps as it slips along their veins.
Life is but a means to an end—that end—
Beginning, mean and end of all things—God.

VALLEY VIEW

Rev. H. J. Hartzell and family moved yesterday to Pico Boulevard, Los Angeles, where Rev. Hartzell preaches the coming year for the M. E. church. Rev. Hartzell and family have greatly endeared themselves to this community in the past two years and all are loath to see them leave.

Arch Moore and family have moved to Bakersfield where Arch has a lucrative job for a few months. They have been living in the Feliz place at 1655 Vine street. Mr. Feliz and wife will move in soon.

F. C. Herron and family of 1440 Vine street are at Long Beach for the next few months on account of Mrs. Herron's health. Mr. Herron comes to Glendale frequently to look after his home.

Protests, both loud and deep, are heard daily regarding the recent improvement of Pacific avenue. There are said to be many inadequacies in the assessments. One party claims his is $12 while his next door neighbor's is 1 cent. One 125 foot lot bordering on Pacific is assessed $109 and a 50 foot frontage near it is assessed $50. The grading of the roadway proves to have been badly planned as the east side is not level enough by a foot or eighteen inches. The bulk of water follows the east side gutters and as these are too shallow it cuts across in many places, guttering the road badly. One of the culvert approaches and one of the outlets was badly undermined by the recent rains. The storm waters present a serious problem along Pacific avenue and west of it. A great volume of water flows down Ivy, Hawthorne, Fifth and Oak from as far east as Central and all this not deflected by the culverts at Fifth and Oak flows down Pacific to Colorado. Oak and Fifth get a big share of it, however, and were badly torn up Monday, as was Cherry street, also.

CLUB SEASON OPENS

A large number of the members of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club assembled in the club room at the city hall Thursday for the opening meeting of the club year. Mrs. C. W. Kimberly, president of the club presided and in a brief address of welcome requested the co-operation of the club in the coming year's work. Mrs. Kimberly introduced Mrs. Lloyd Harmon, president of the Los Angeles district federation who gave a splendid address along the line of club work for women giving the ladies present many suggestions that will be valuable to them in the various departments of club work the coming year. Miss Melicent Virden, pianist and Miss Lenora Allen vocalist, furnished the musical part of the program in their usual artistic and gracious manner.

Following the program a social hour and reception was enjoyed.

It is right to be contented with what we have, but never with what we are.—Sir J. Mackintosh.

SAVING THE HIGHWAYS

REPRESENTATIVE MEN THINK TRAVELING PUBLIC SHOULD HELP MAINTAIN ROADS

There was a meeting held last Friday, September 29, in the Hall of Records, Los Angeles, which was attended by a hundred or more representative men from the seven southern counties of the state, the object of which was to formulate plans to solve the problem of protecting our highways from destruction by excessive auto traffic. Supervisor Hinshaw of Los Angeles County was elected chairman. After discussing these matters in a general way for two hours or more the meeting authorized the chair to appoint a committee of fifteen to study the question and report with recommendations thereon to a subsequent meeting to be called by the chair when said report is ready. The chair appointed on that committee one supervisor from each of the seven counties represented, two representatives from the city of Los Angeles and one each from the cities of Pasadena, Redlands, Riverside, San Diego, Santa Ana and San Bernardino.

The advent of the motor vehicle with its seemingly unlimited possibilities of development, both in the realm of pleasure and utility has ushered in a new era of highway construction which has given rise to many important problems of highway engineering, financing and traffic regulation.

These problems are now engaging the attention of engineers and legislators as well as the general public, as is evidenced by the large place this subject is given in the columns of the press, as well as by the many laws, state, county and municipal that have been enacted during the last few years in an attempt to provide an equitable scheme of distributing the costs of highway construction and maintenance, as well as to regulate the increasing volume of traffic.

The highway engineers have been engaged in designing and constructing roads which were intended to hold up under the heavy strain of motor traffic. The concrete base with an asphalt wearing surface has come to be accepted by most engineers as the best type of highway construction. Most of the California state highways are of this type, the concrete base being in most cases four inches in thickness with a wearing surface of oil and rock screenings.

It would seem that the problem of protecting these roads from destruction by excessively heavy traffic is a matter of first ascertaining from the engineers the maximum load these roads were intended to carry and then have our legislators give us a state law limiting the loads which may be carried on these roads to that weight.

I understand the county of Los Angeles has an ordinance limiting the weight that may be drawn over the county highways to 800 pounds per inch width of tire on each wheel.

Some think the standard four-inch base adopted by the state highway commission is not heavy enough to stand the strain of the heaviest auto traffic. That is, no doubt, a fact, but there is certainly a limit to the amount of money that can be profitably invested in roads, especially from the standpoint of property-holders and taxpayers, and it would seem that when the property-holder has paid for the construction of a road that will meet his own requirements for convenience, pleasure and utility he has done his part, and that if these highways are to be increased in capacity to stand the traffic of passenger and heavy freight trains, those who profit thereby should pay the extra cost, both of construction and maintenance.

With the ever increasing cost of highway construction, it is becoming necessary to consider some means of placing a part of such costs upon the traffic. This is now done in the state and county from the receipts of the motor vehicle act, and should be extended to the municipalities, as well as many of the cities have to maintain a great many miles of roadway, which is a part of the state and county highway system. The expense of maintaining such highways as will meet the demands of present day motor traffic is too great to be borne by the abutting property, especially along these main highways, and part of this expense should be borne by the traveling public and those who get pleasure and profit by the use of these highways.

Those who took part in the discussion at the meeting discussed these problems along the lines indicated in the above statement. The city of Glendale was represented at the meeting by Trustee Jackson and City Manager T. W. Watson.

NOT HARD TO ANSWER

The schoolmaster wanted to know whether the boys understood how a British consulate helps British travelers in distant lands.

"Supposing," he began, "someone took you up in an aeroplane and after a long, exciting flight dropped you down thousands of miles from home in a country quite foreign. What place would you seek out first of all?"

An eager hand was uplifted, — "Please, sir, the hospital."

"Sport is a merry companion for a while, but it soon becomes a harsh taskmaker."

RUNS MAXWELL CAR 250 MILES ON ONE DOLLAR

Both Russell Sage and Hetty Green could have taken lessons from E. S. McArthur of Blythe, Cal., on saving money, and it is a safe bet that no chauffeur they ever had knew so much about running a car at low cost.

Mr. McArthur lives, as we have said, at Blythe, Cal., which is in San Bernardino county, east of Barstow, and right in the middle of a hot dry desert. It is 250 miles from Los Angeles and the railroad fare between the two places is $13.20.

But Mr. McArthur knows a better way than paying railroad fare. He has a Maxwell touring car and he saved just $12.20 over the fare last week when he drove this Maxwell from Blythe to Los Angeles. The drive was through the Coachilla and Chuckawalla valleys — hot, dry stretches of desert, and the temperature overaged over 110 degrees, but the entire drive was made with only one dollar's worth of fuel in the tank.

Mr. McArthur is now in Los Angeles, and expects to repeat this drive on his return trip to Blythe and says he can even beat this record in his new 1917 Maxwell. He stated that he had no trouble in driving over the sandy road and the intense desert heat caused no overheating or trouble with the Maxwell motor.

Mr. Clayton of the local Maxwell agency said yesterday that the sales of the Maxwell in Southern California during September were almost three times those of September, 1915. And this increase has been in spite if a shortage of cars for immediate delivery which was relieved only last week by the arrival in Los Angeles of a forty car freight bringing 268 Maxwells.

"A crowd of troubles passed him by
As he with courage waited;
He said, 'Where do your troubles fly,
When you are thus belated?'
'We go,' they said, 'to those who mope,
Who look on life dejected;
Who weakly say good-bye to hope—
We go where we're expected."

THE TWO GARMENTS

Two garments, woven in the sky
Are given to every child of earth,
One to enwrap it from its birth,
White, radiant, soft—humility.

The other wrought of silk and gold,
A mantle meant for other's needs,
Covering their faulty words and deeds
With lovely kindness—charity.

Happy the souls which rightly use
The two—but they who change them round
In tattered rags, alas! are found,
And both the heavenly garments lose!

—Priscilla Leonard.

"The harder it rains the better I like it," observed a cheerful individual.

"Chronic optimist, eh?" remarked a bystander.

"Optimist, no! I'm an umbrella salesman."

The relative durability of California commercial timber is being experimented upon at the Forest Service Laboratory, Madison, Wis., in rotting pits. These pits, constructed of cement, are kept in a condition of temperature and humidity most favorable for the development of wood destroying fungi, of which cultures are introduced.
